

Camisha Adams is an accomplished individual with a passion for education and a heart for serving others. With over 15 years of experience in education, Camisha has built an impressive resume that includes her roles as an instructional coach, testing coordinator, administrator, and an educator who has navigated both on site and virtual platforms. She graduated from the University of Houston with a Baccalaureate of Science in Supply Chain & Logistics Technology, a minor in the Arts for Dance, and ample experience in organizational leadership while spearheading on campus student engagement initiatives. She acquired several certifications along her educational journey. They include Education for Early Childhood through Sixth, Education for Special Education through Twelfth, Education for English as a Second Language, and numerous software applications. Camisha then attained her Master's in Business Administration-Energy Leadership from Texas A&M University and has not lost momentum in enriching and continuing to develop her skills and expertise.

Throughout her career, she has demonstrated a commitment to innovation and a deep understanding of the ever-changing educational landscape. As Head of School, Camisha provides an innovative, inclusive, and engaging learning environment for all students. She believes education should be transformative and emphasizes the importance of collaboration and communication, working closely with teachers, staff, and parents to ensure each student receives the support they need to succeed. Camisha leads with integrity, transparency, and inspiration, always willing to support others. She is committed to creating a culture of respect, responsibility, and accountability in which all students can develop into responsible global citizens.